Soissons, July 8.

WHAT was said of the Duke de Bourbonville's Departure in the Night between the 3d and 4th for Paris, proves a Mistake, his Excellency being detained here by a Cholick, with which he was seized; so that he did not set out before Yesterday with all his Retinue and Equipage: And 'tis probable he will not return hither, another Minister being appointed in his Place. On the 5th Instant came hither two Couriers, one from Spain and the other from Paris; whereupon there was an Assembly at the Castle, at which, most or all the Ministers were present; but the Conference lasted not above Half-an-hour, and we could not learn what was treated of. Wye's Letter, verbatim, London, July 11.

Since our last arrived a Mail from France.

ON Saturday Night, as Sir William Willsby, of Woollsbury Bart. was going home in his Coach, the violent Storm of Rain and Thunder which happened about that Time, so swelled the Waters of a Mill upon Long-Brook, 3 Miles from Litchfield, thro' which Sir William was to pass, that just as his Coach was got into the Water, the Mill-dam blew up, and the Water roll'd down in such heaps as carried all before it, and overset the Coach; so that he was drowned, and all his Footmen and Horses: But the Coachman saved himself by catching hold of a Tree.

The Accounts from Bigglesworth in Bedfordshire tell us, That on Saturday-night last also there was a most terrible Storm of Thunder and Lightning; and the greatest Quantity of Rain fell that has been known for many Years.

The same Day Mr. Woolse, Printer of Mist's Journal, taken into Custody of a Messenger last Sunday by Warrant of a Secretary of State, was admitted to Bail.

The Affair of the Congress of Soissous is all the Discourse of the Town; and they are under the utmost Impatience for the Return of the Couriers dispatched to Madrid and Vienna, because of the Reports that are given out, touching the Pretensions of the first nam'd Court; and the latter's complying plying with the Demands of the States General, in relation to the Ostend Company: Who, according to the Accounts from Brussels, flatter themselves that they shall be able to maintain the Trade to the E. Indies, by their Charter granted by the Emperor.

But should the Negotiations for a general Peace happen to prove unsuccessful, the World will soon know to whom it is to be attributed. Mean while the passing of Couriers, and the Suspension of the Conferences, (which some make a Handle of for raising Fears and Doubts) are very common on the like Transactions, as the Result of the different Interests of so many Powers concerned.

Last Sunday the Nuncio of the Pope entertained the Plenipotentiaries of the Roman Catholick Powers, and several other Persons of Distinction.
